The Environment

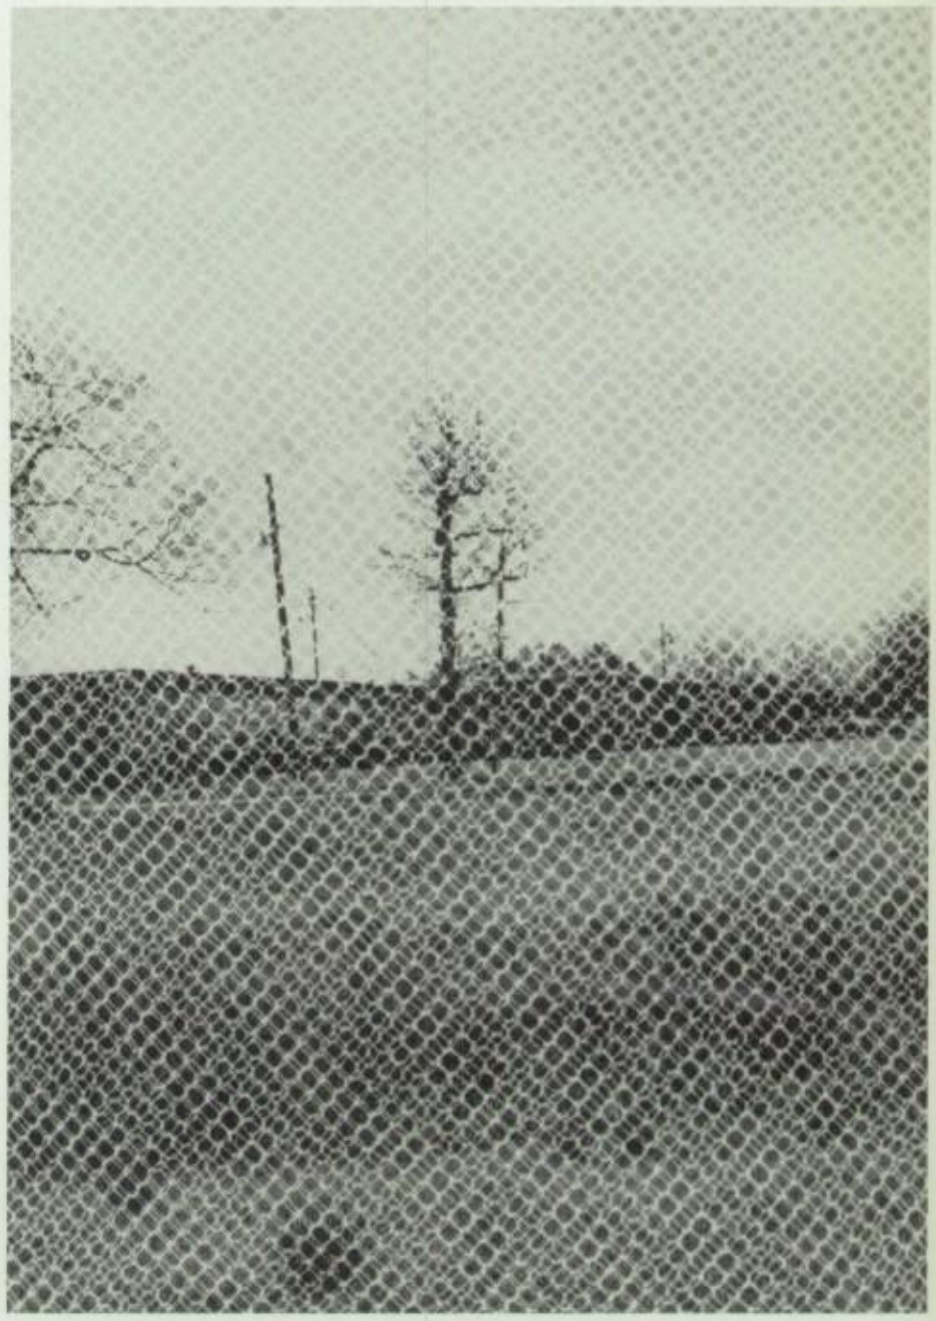
Work as well as play characterizes our school environment.

Mr. Wyatt greets a new student and looks over his schedule for classes.

Mr. Walsworth, custodian, is seen almost daily raising Ole Glory high above our school.

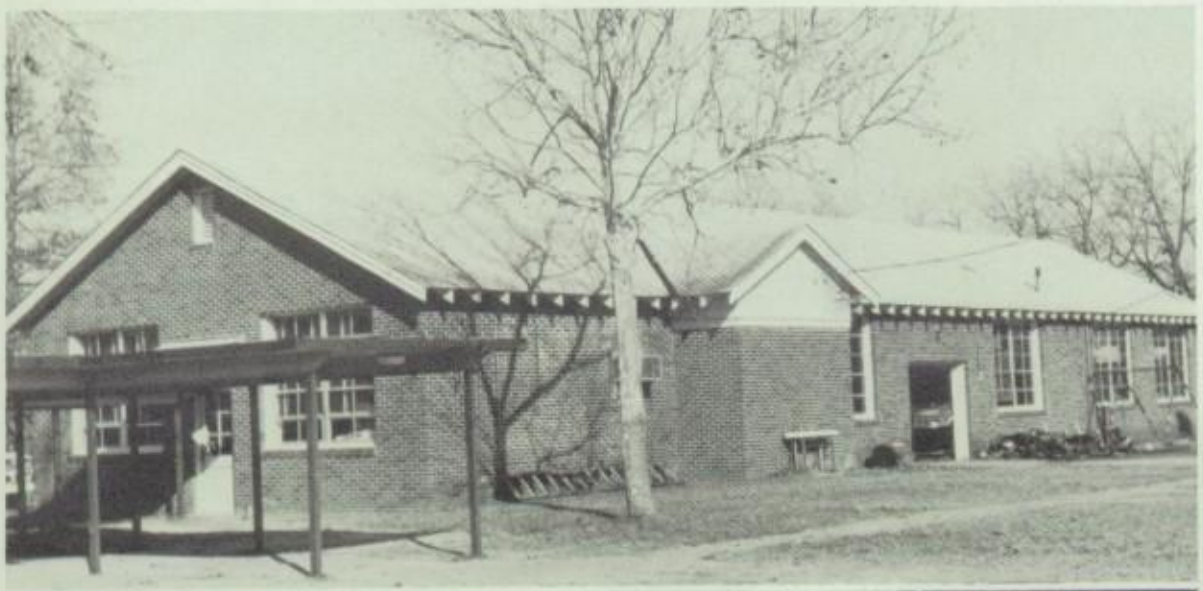
It is always refreshing to have a younger student who will come by and thank you for the food and comment on how delicious it was.



The buildings at WHS are very meaningful to the students. They have held laughter, crying, noisey enthusiasm and solemn silence, all of these feelings the students bring and take away.

The agriculture building holds equipment for students to grasp and learn to use. They acquire never-to-be-forgotten skills.

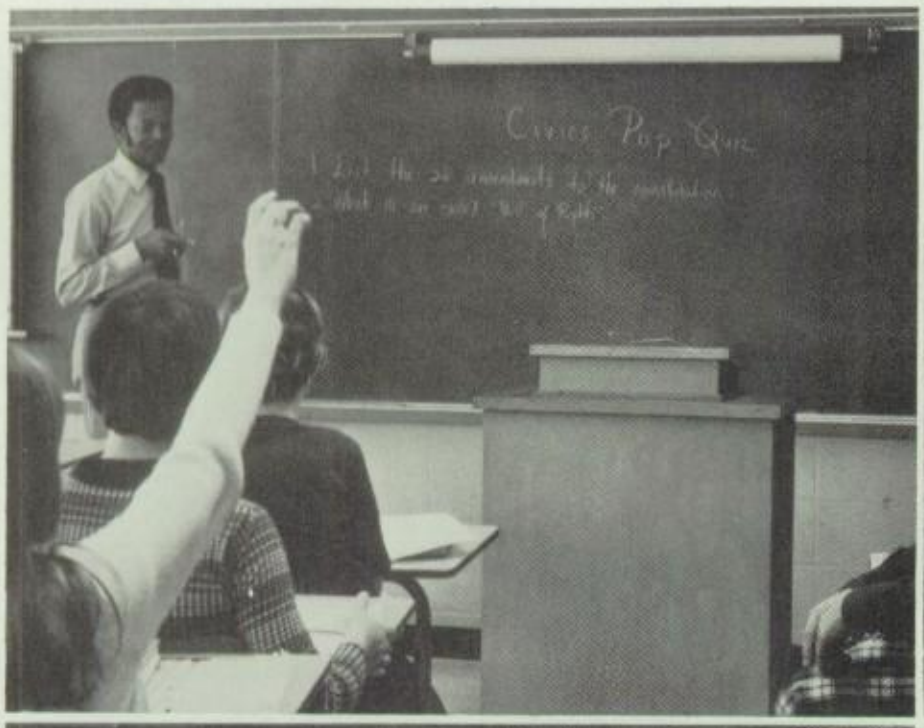
The kindergarten is the first step for the students acquiring knowledge. The elementary building is the second step for growing students.

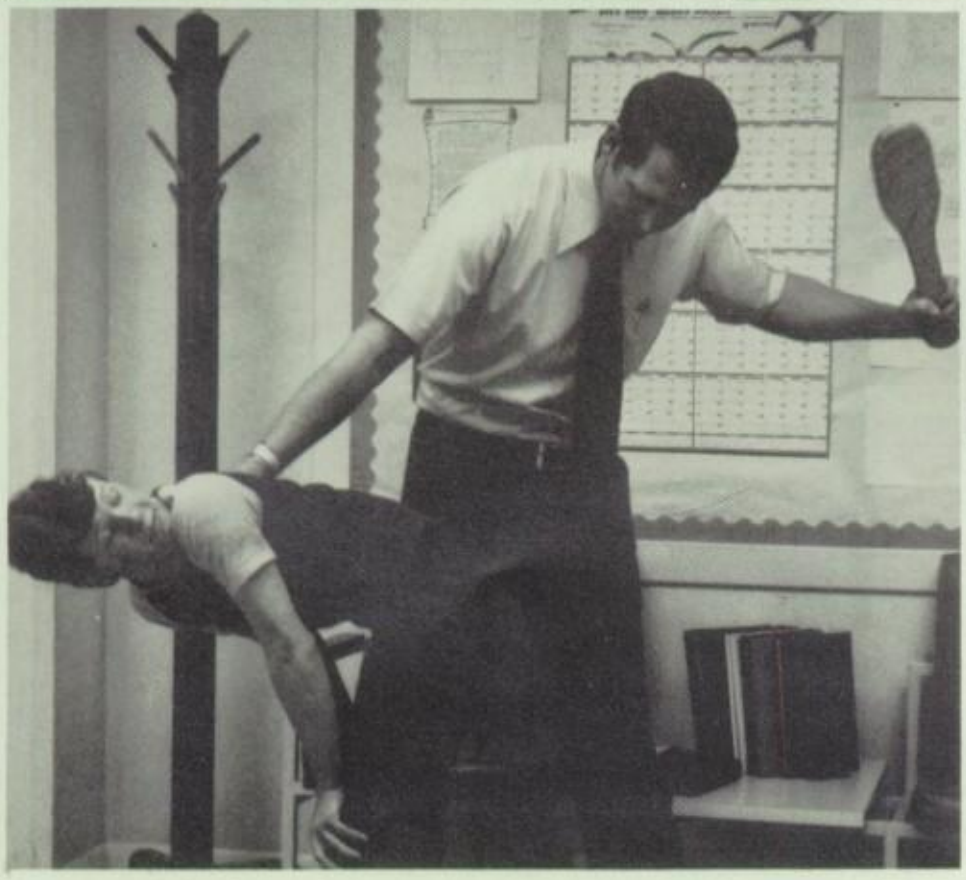


The high school building has many rooms which contain various learning facilities. All of these the students cherish. There are many things that may be seen daily around the school.

Students . . .

Protest over a Poptest
Listen in the Library
Puzzle over a Poem
Collapse over Cooking
Agonizing in Algebra
Games in the Gym
Suffer in Science
Last in the Lunchroom line
Tangle in Typing
Ouch in the Office

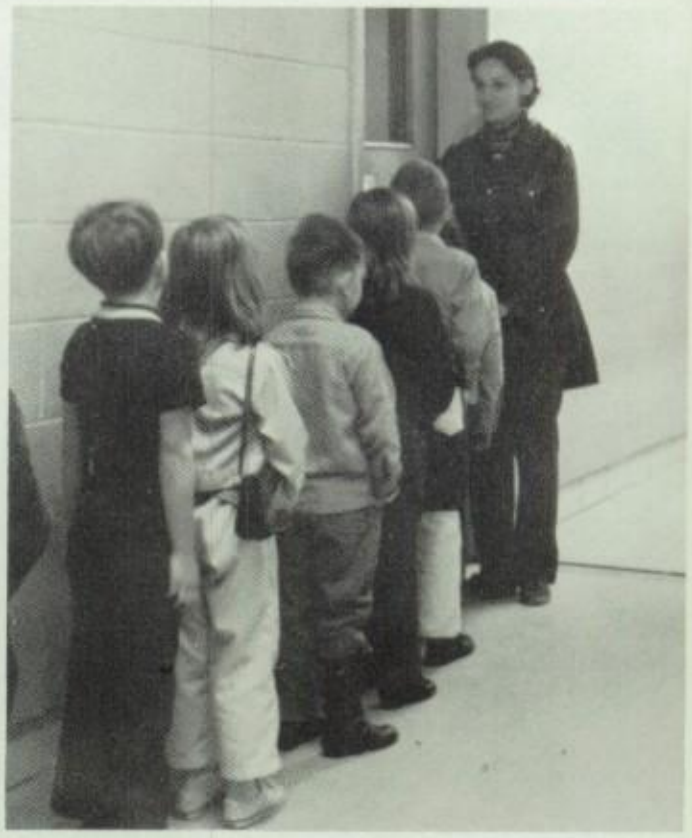




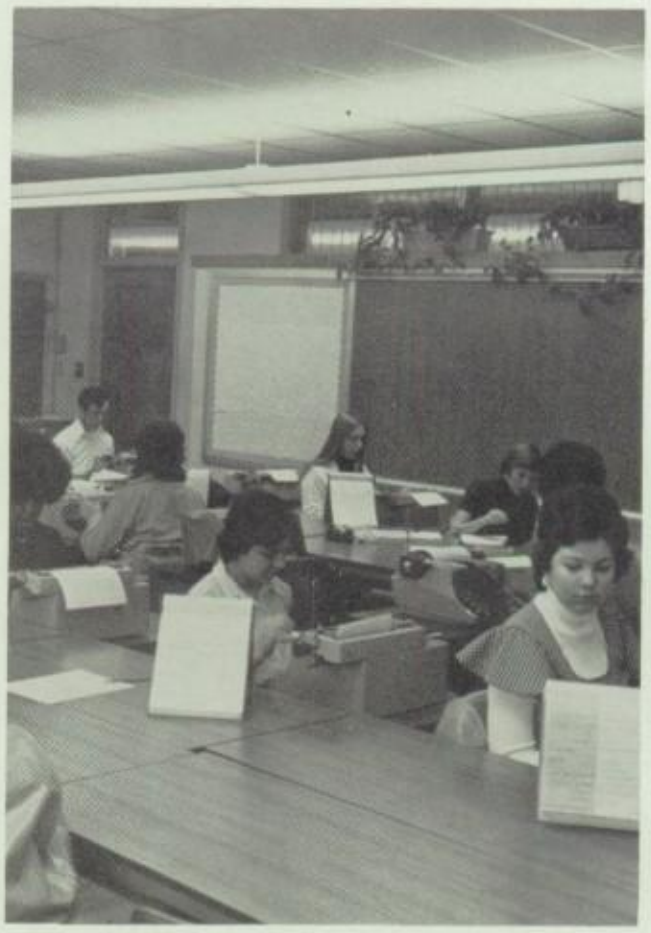
Students find many new experiences at our school. Yet these alone do not count. It is the joy of small things and the love of everyday life that is important.

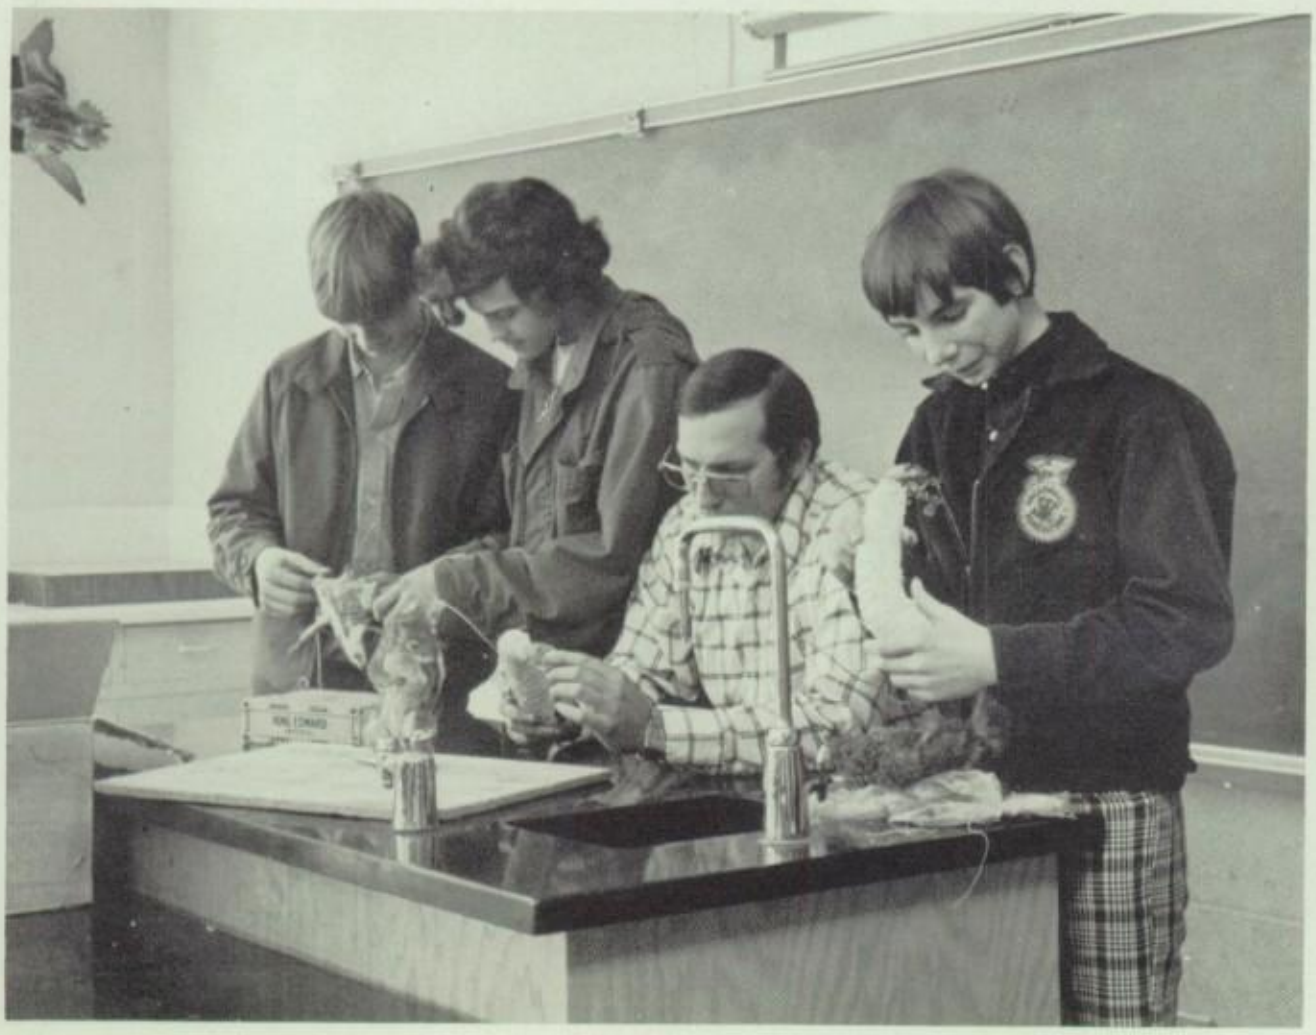
Everyday Life at W.H.S. . . .

The morning is just beginning. The students arrive slowly, in busses or in cars. Then the school bell rings calling all students to their homeroom class. Breakfast is served to the students who pay for the meal.

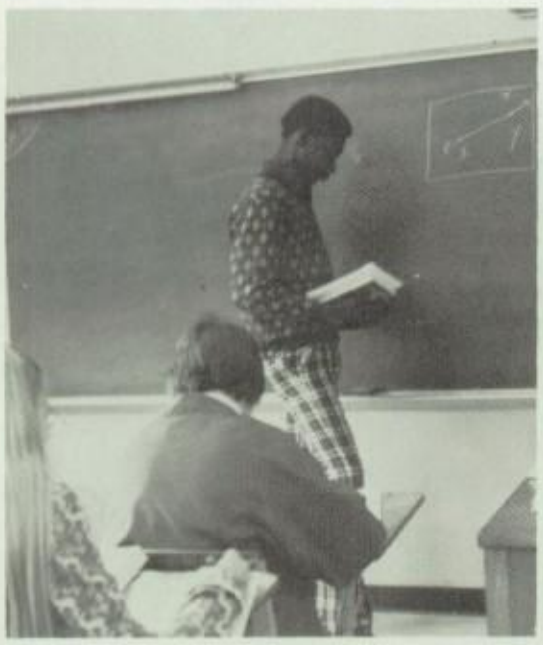


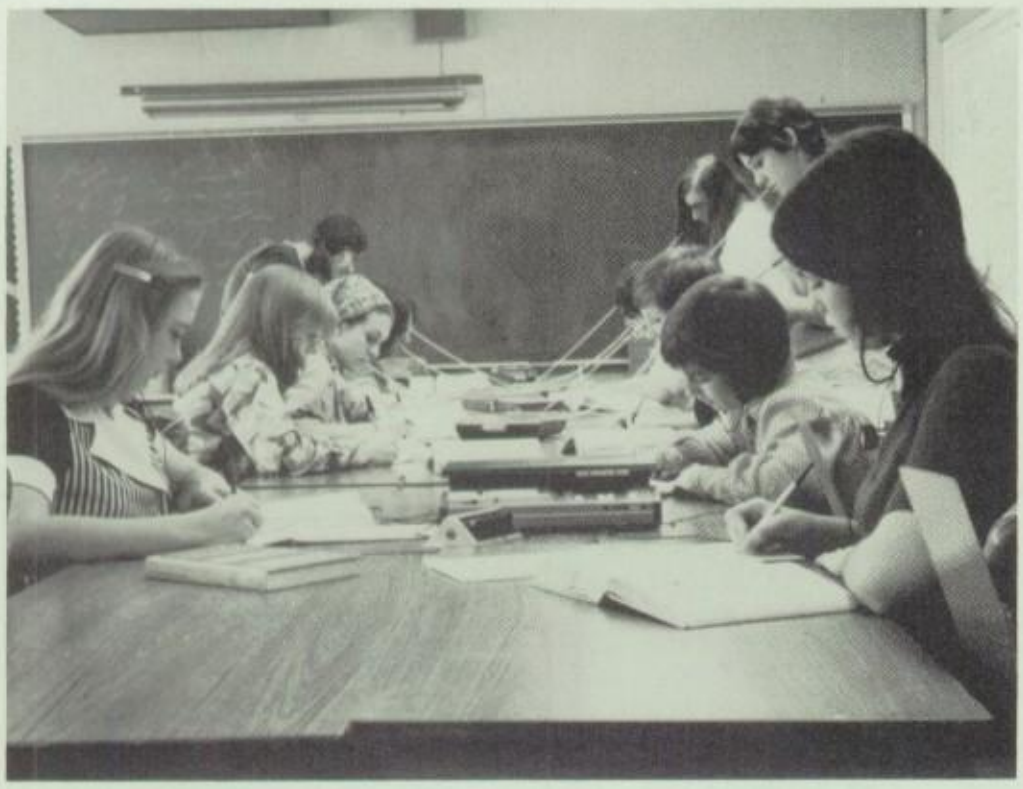
The first two hours of the morning slowly go by. The students involve themselves in their work and eagerly look forward to recess.

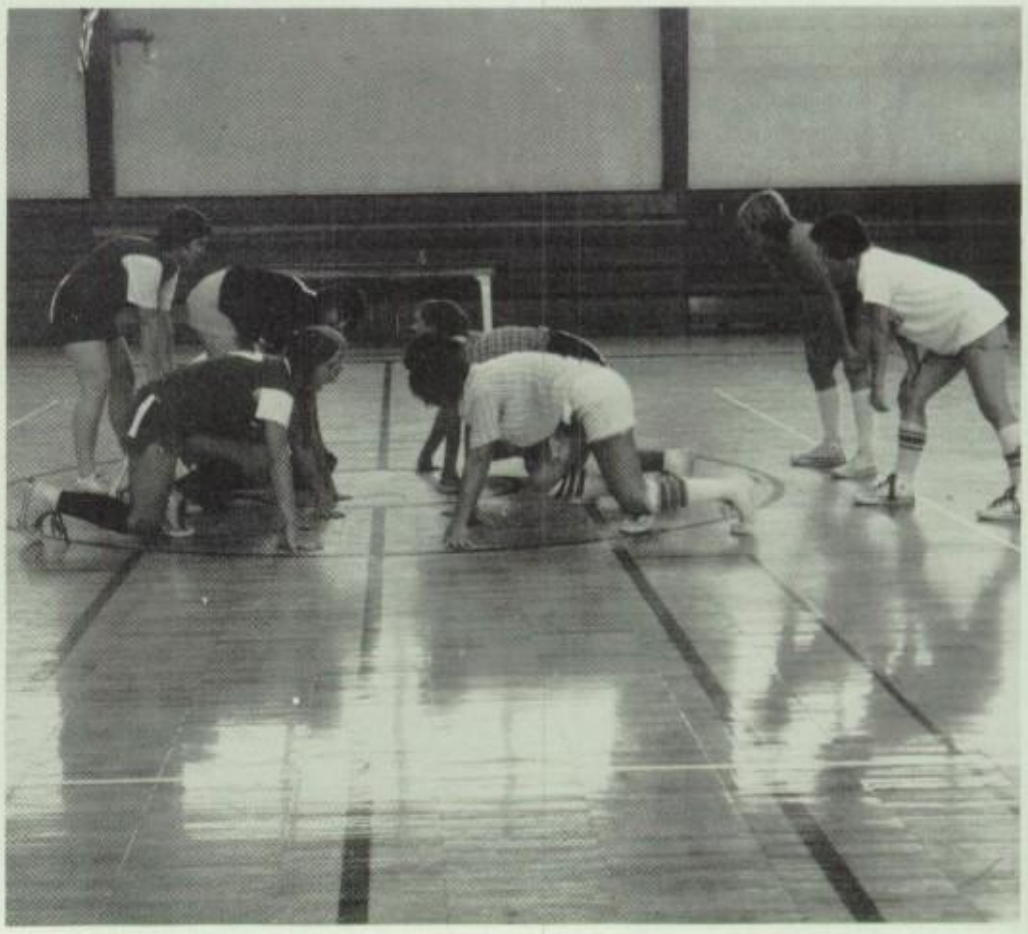




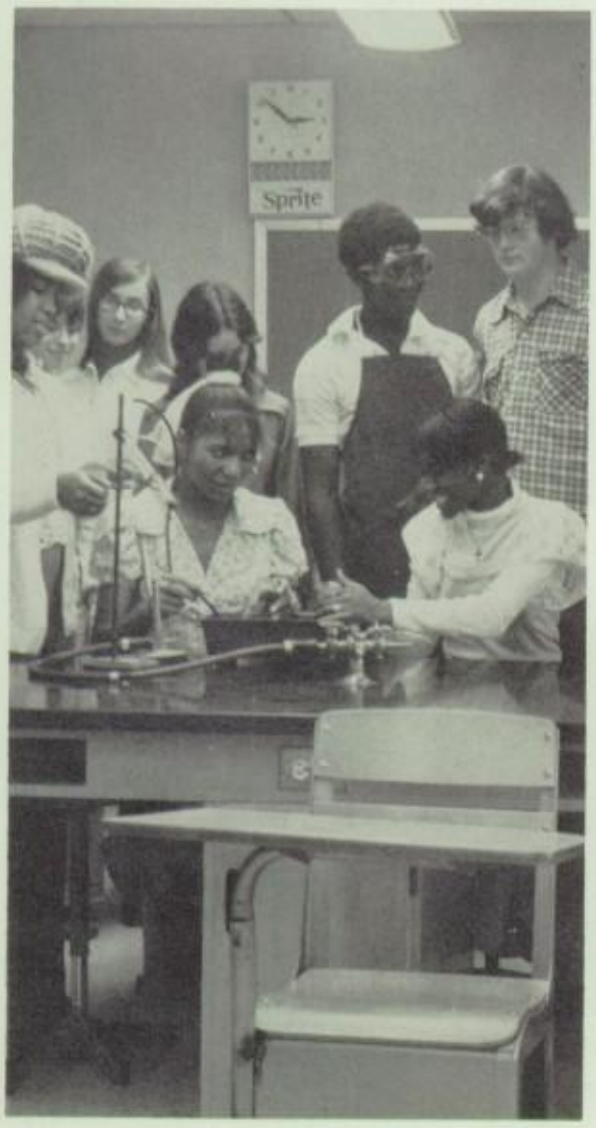
After recess has come and gone, work goes on at WHS. Everyone is now awaiting his lunch time. Lunch is a time to rest before the afternoon classes begin.





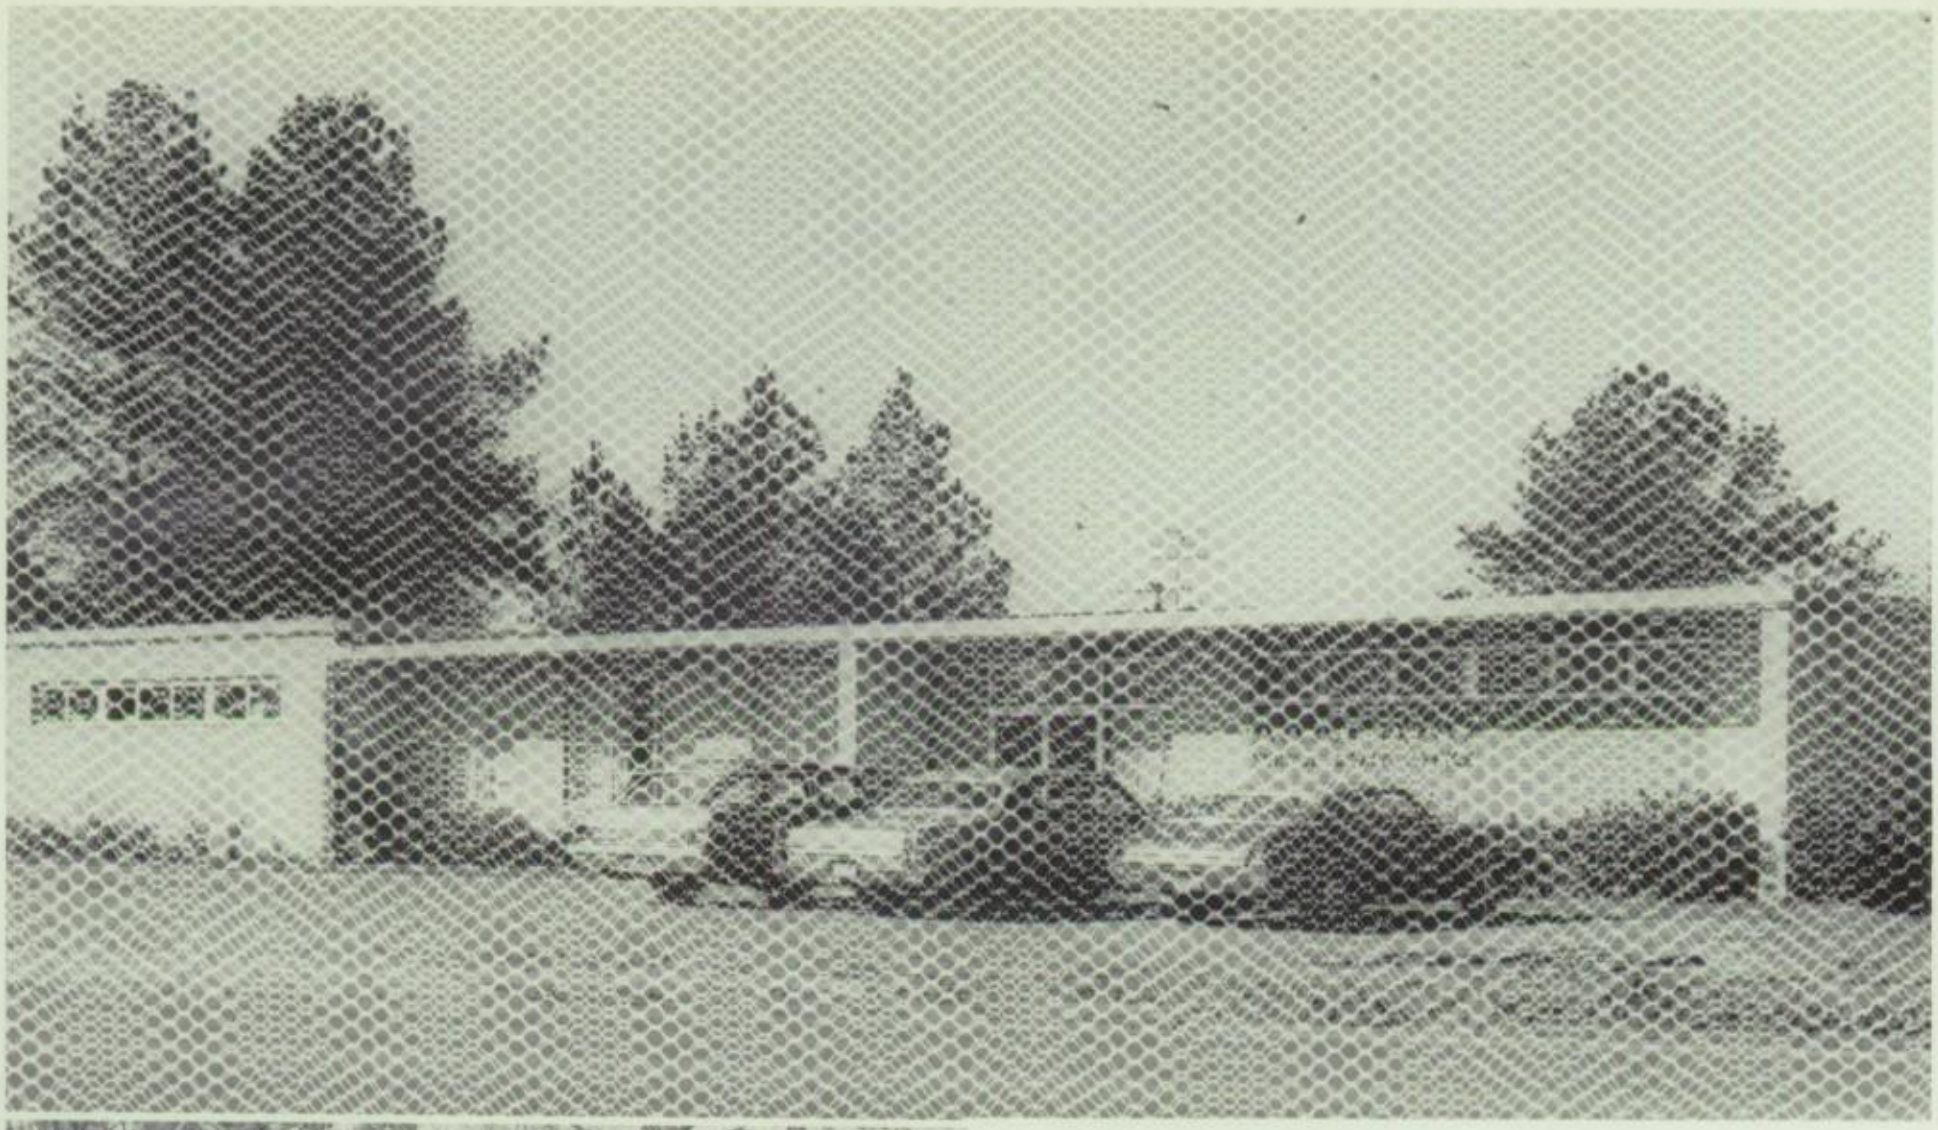


Fifth hour is here. Time has come to proceed into the day. The afternoon break has arrived. Suddenly the break disappears into the last hour of school. Then the 3:00 bell rings, and the school empties much faster than it filled in the morning.



The service staff are working to get ready for another day; the basketball players are practicing for the upcoming games; and the PTO Meeting is tonight.

This is Everyday Life at WHS!



Establishment and Educators

Responsible for the creation, operation, and appraisal of public education in Jackson Parish is the School Board, both a deliberative and a legislative body. This Board, elected by the people, formulates policies and legislates to make these policies effective. The function of the Board is not to operate the schools but to see that they are operated for the best interests of the children and taxpayers. Working and providing leadership in the areas of instruction, pupil services, and administration are many educators. Maintenance and minor construction activities of the school plant are cared for by the maintenance supervisor and his crew.

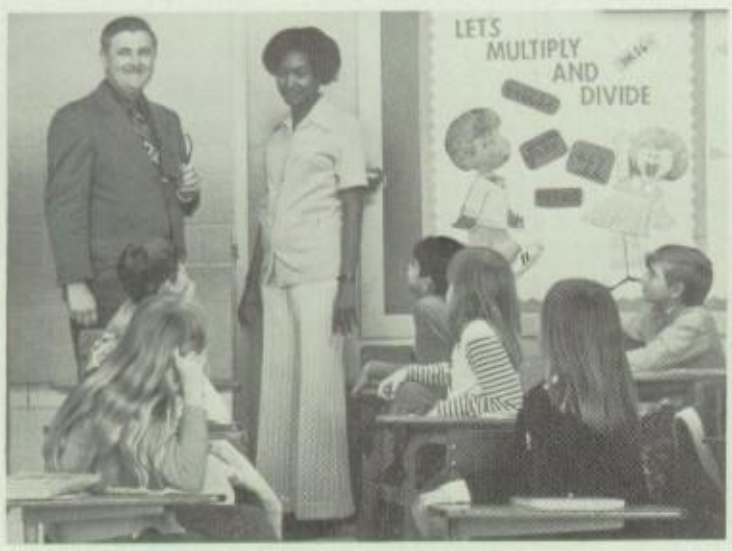
From the Principal's Desk

The yearbook staff is commended for the unique approach in their summation of this year's history. This list of key words beginning with E, excellent must be added - for a job well done in planning this book.

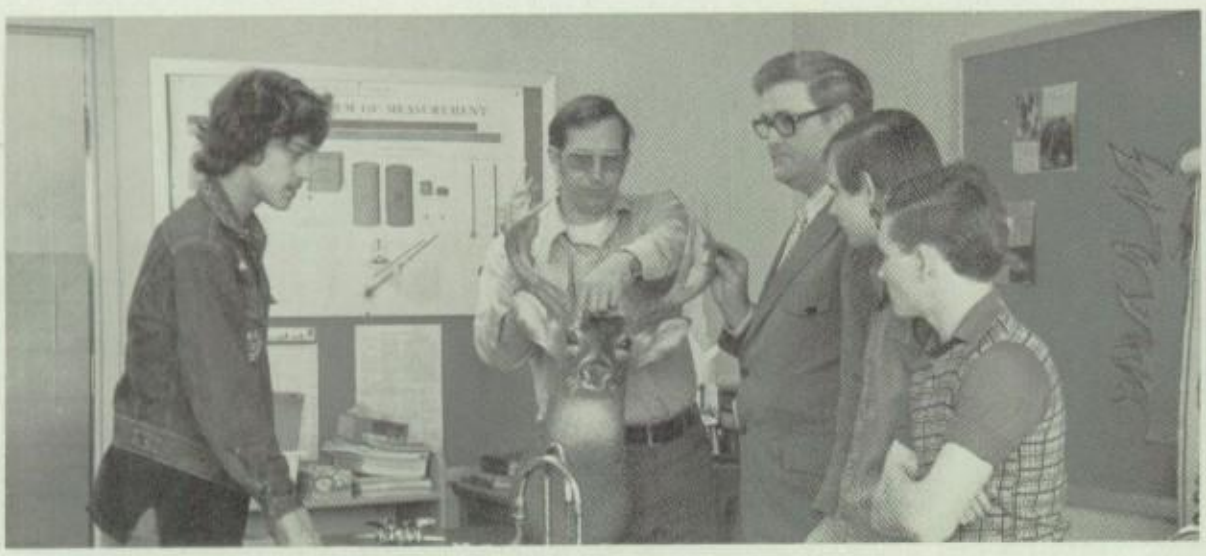
Thanks to all of those who have been a part of a successful school year. Let's look at the future adhering to the educational advice from Proverbs, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

Donald K. Wyatt



Mr. Wyatt introduces Mrs. Spence, new teacher, to the 4th Grade.

School bus regulations and policies are discussed with drivers.



The principal pleads for perfection on his prize trophy.

"If I can just get these connected the K's intercom will be working."

Educated

The friendships one makes at school are among the most important aspects of education. Success in life depends as much on learning how to communicate and work with others, as it does on the knowledge gained in the classroom.

Happy Bicentennial America!

For 1976 . . .
It's George Washington,
Apple Pie, and Yearbooks.

Join us in our salute to America and the founding fathers during this 200th anniversary of the American Revolution. We will "look forward to the past" next year and use the bicentennial theme in our '76 publication. Planning and work will begin this summer when Cindy and Becky Kelly attend the Summer Workshop at Northeast sponsored by our publishers, Taylor Publishing Co. of Dallas.

Seniors of 1975

"This was our year . . . It was a year of happiness and at times sadness. We walked through Weston High with pride, always with our heads high because this was our year.

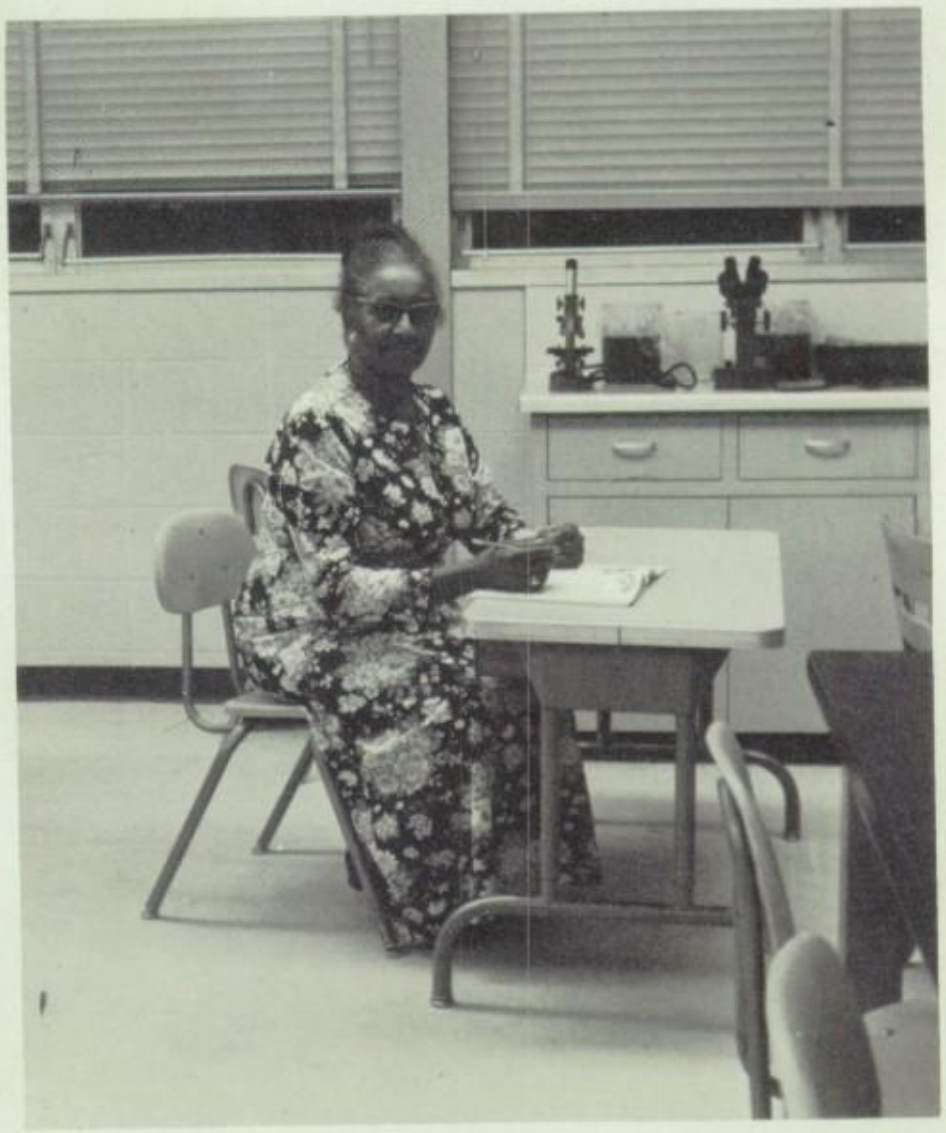
So now we leave WHS. We leave to all underclassmen our gains, and our losses, our hopes, and our dreams.

But most important we leave you our school. We leave it to you because our year is over."

Adult Education

Adult or Continuing Education can change the life of the young adult or the more mature adult.

Necessary ingredients for this are the desire to continue school and the engergy to work to accomplish this goal.



Editor's Ending

As the sun sets . . .

and you have reached the end of this book you have seen many original creations by the annual staff. You see that much time and work was connected with its construction. Thanks to all of those who were in any way responsible for the publication.

A new tomorrow is drawing nigh, one filled with hope for a brighter day. In closing -

"I will be walking in that light
not dreading the unknown
Believing His words are true,
'It's better farther on.' "
